

Change of Beneficial Ownership

What is a change in beneficial ownership?

A change in beneficial ownership of a company is defined in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Regulations 2019 (the Regulations) as occurring when:

- (a) there is a change in the persons (whether individuals or bodies corporate) holding an interest in 50% or more of the total voting shares of the company; or
- (b) the company becomes a subsidiary of another company.

How does a change in beneficial ownership affect Marine Park permits?

Where there has been a change in beneficial ownership of a company which is a Marine Parks permit holder, the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park Authority (the Authority) may suspend, revoke or modify permits held by that company on the following grounds:

- (a) if the permission relates to an undeveloped project the costs of which will be large — there are reasonable grounds for believing the changed company does not have the capacity to satisfactorily develop and manage the project;
- (b) the changed company, or an executive officer of the changed company, owes a fee, fine or other amount payable under the Act or these Regulations;
- (c) there are reasonable grounds for believing that the changed company cannot comply with one or more of the conditions attached to the permission;
- (d) the changed company is not a suitable person to hold the permission, having regard to:
  - (i) the history of the changed company in relation to environmental matters; and
  - (ii) the history of the executive officers of the changed company in relation to environmental matters; and
  - (iii) if the changed company is a subsidiary of another company (the parent body) — the history of the parent body, and its executive officers, in relation to environmental matters.

What process occurs when there is a change in beneficial ownership?

What does a permit holder need to do when a change of beneficial ownership occurs?

The permit holder is required to notify the Authority in writing in the approved form within 20 business days after the change occurs. The approved form can be found on the following pages.
